

Geetika Timmins is the founder of Energy Keeper. A biomimicry inspired startup that is focused on creating solutions that engage with children and youngsters to foster young mindful adults of tomorrow. Based on the idea that living systems can provide clues for how to create human life designs that are better for both people and planet, Geetika's passion lies in unearthing and discovering processes that will engender lasting changes in humanistic relationships with each other and with the planet we inhabit.

This broad focus has driven her to study the essential elements a child needs in their pre adult years to fortify mindsets that have the inherent potential to be contributive, compassionate and humane, as children grow up to become world citizens. Currently, she has designed and developed a unique K-12 day school model that integrates this approach into their day-to-day learning.

In her earlier life as she calls it, Geetika, has been a highly successful brand developer and a lead for several large scale projects in the space of media and live entertainment. She combines her skills of project design, brand building and creative thinking to develop unique customised solutions for everyday living that are imbued in the avante garde concept of biomimicry, a space she has taken special interest in learning and researching about for the last 5 years, and has been intuitively guided into for decades.

A nature enthusiast, shadow anthropologist, Geetika is fascinated with the interconnectedness of all life while raising her three boys including her husband in Mumbai, India. She can be contacted at geetikatimmins@energykeeper.in
